MARTINSVILLE HIGH SCHOOL

Martinsville - - - Indiana

Living in the Metropolitan

Like pieces of a jig-saw puzzle, four townships — Clay, Baker, Washington, and Jefferson — combined with the city of Martinsville to form the Metropolitan School District of Martinsville in a referendum in the 1952 primary election, following an unsuccessful attempt in May 1950.

Formerly pupils from outside the city limits were sent by the township trustees to be educated by the Martinsville School City, and their tuition was paid by the townships. Now the tax resources of the townships and city together are in back of the pupil in providing new buildings as well as current operating expenses.

In this book we are trying to show how the entire district with its diversified resources, population, and social institutions contributes to the successful operation of our schools and how the schools in turn make important contributions to the life of the community.

Natural resources provide the economic foundation of our community. Timber from the surrounding hills has promoted a lumber and furniture industry. Brick and tile plants utilize local clays to provide jobs in Martinsville and Brooklyn.

Because of an extensive agricultural development, Martinsville has become a typical mid-western county seat with job opportunities in its retail stores, feed mills, law offices, banks, and other service establishments.

Betty Jo and Larry Hess sort goldfish at their father's hatchery, the Clear Creek Fisheries.

Richard Shane and James Pearcy discovered that testing soil, which is part of the vocational agriculture program, was very interesting. Here they look over the results of some of their tests.

One of our school's outstanding features is its well-equipped machine shop. Ronald Garrison, William Fisher, and Jack Guinn, by taking advantage of it, are preparing themselves for good jobs after graduation.

Developing

Gentlemen of leisure! Mike and J. L. Wolff relax on the lawn of their new home and relate the happenings of the day to their mother, Mrs. John L. Wolff.

Many people who earn a living outside of the Metropolitan School District of Martinsville have discovered the advantages of residing in this community. And the development of strong, wholesome family life has become increasingly a concern of our school.

In the woodshop Rodney Pearson and Phil Bowers develop useful home repair skills as well as vocational proficiency.

Learning to make cooking a home-making art are Nyla Crone, Sarah Sweet, and Ida Alice Arnold.

Our Home Life

Mrs. Davis, Agnes Warner, Delores Esteb, and Margaret Curtis admire their "handy work," which was put on display in the J. C. Penney store. All the clothes were made in homemaking class, and we don't blame them for being proud.

A freshman guidance course called Community Living was instituted this year. Other classes in social problems, homemaking, and even industrial arts develop wholesome attitudes and homemaking skills which will help build a better community.

Anna Maye Stine and Carolyn Fisher inspect some reading materials on family problems in the social problems room.

Joyce Hurt, Kay Smith, and Linda Davis pose in clothing with which they won honors in state 4-H competition.

Providing for Health

Nationally famous as a health resort, Martinsville in both school and community provides for physical development. The city park is a favorite spot for tennis, softball and picnics. Artesian mineral water brings visitors to the city's sanitariums.

In Jefferson Township, Patton Lake attracts many visitors, and the wooded hills bordering the White River valley draw thousands for picnics, hikes, and Sunday afternoon driving.

The school offers courses in health, safety, home nursing, and physical education; provides a cafeteria for nourishing lunches, and has a broad athletic and noon-time recreation program.

Going off duty from their part-time jobs at the Home Lawn Mineral Springs are Jackie Clark and Wayne Boring. The Home Lawn is one of four watering places in Martinsville.

Taking advantage of the nutritious meals served in the school cafeteria are Frank Woods, J. K. Daily, Wayne Boring, and John Thomas. About half of the school population patronizes the cafeteria and sandwich counter.

Anita Weddle and Cynthia Ferrand help Faye Drake into bed the way they've been taught to do in home nursing class.

Developing

Martha Jean Bastin, Jim Bishop, and Richard Quakenbush discuss this relic of the Civil War on the Court House lawn. To familiarize students with local history and government is one of our school's aims. As part of this program the government classes attended court one day this fall and were surprised to find how very interesting it was.

While the schools take the major responsibility for helping the student acquire attitudes and habits of good citizenship, important contributions are made by other community agencies. Local businessmen and government officials welcome field trips and personal interviews. Civic-minded organizations award prizes and recognition to students outstanding in citizenship: The American Legion's citizenship medals, the

On November 4, 1952, loyal Americans went to the polls to elect new governmental officials. At MHS every student was given a chance to vote, too, under the direction of the government classes. Here Paul Townsend, Carolyn Oldham, Eloise Eskew, and Marylin Telfer stand by as Gary Wininger drops his vote in the ballot box.

Mr. Hall stands ready to give Lawrence Chrenko any help he may need as he relates the world news of the week to his history class.

Citizenship

How better to learn the advantages of the American free enterprise system than to make a business deal? Lawrence Stafford is just one of a number of farm boys who have obtained bank loans for their agricultural projects in the last few years. Banker Merrill Wilson makes out the note in his office at the First National Bank.

D. A. R. certificate to an outstanding senior girl citizen, the Kennedy essay prizes, and the sponsorship of pupils to Girls State and Boys State.

Citizenship is the primary goal of the history and government classes. Membership in the National Honor Society is voted to a limited number of juniors and seniors. Serving as club officers, class officers, and members of the Student Council offers valuable training in leadership.

Learning to be good citizens on the road are Bruce Neal, Francis Dransfield, Janet Davis, Phil Goetcheus, Naomi Bales, Doris Richards Clark, and Janet Nail, all members of one of Mr. Bisesi's driver training classes.

Who wouldn't like to take a trip to Mexico? Even though Don MacFarland, Phyllis Schoolcraft, and James Kelley may never make that trip, they're learning all about it in Mrs. Owens' geography class.

Appreciating the Spiritual

Martinsville, located between our capital city and a state university, has many cultural advantages.

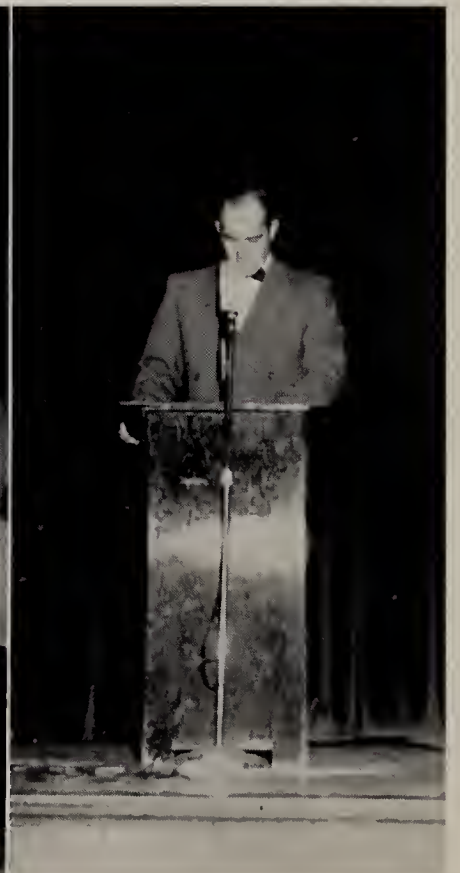

Freedom of religion is enjoyed by those who attend each Sunday the church of their choice.

For cultural activities the high school auditorium provides a place to display local talent as well as many professional programs. Productions presented at I. U.

One of the annual traditions of Hi-Y is to attend church in a body. On a brisk, snowy morning the club was well represented at the new First Methodist Church.

The Link Observatory, located near Brooklyn, is a favorite retreat for scientific groups and star-gazers.

The landscape of our southern Indiana hills attracts numerous painters. Nearby is the important Hoosier artist colony in Brown County.

Buses Lead Parade Across New Bridge

A chilly grey day with the misty hint of rain in the air, December 4 was the day of dedication of one of the most beautiful bridges in Indiana. Spanning White River, this bridge, costing thousands of dollars, links Martinsville to busy State Road 67.

School children as well as officials were interested in the construction of this bridge. Prior to the dedication, school buses carrying children from across the river were forced to travel on an extremely narrow antiquated span. The students with a feeling of personal satisfaction at its completion were invited to be the first to officially cross the bridge at the dedication service.

Consolidation Brings Changes in School Control

Planning the curriculum is one of the main tasks of Principal Royce Kurtz. Other duties include supervising teachers and making recommendations to the superintendent.

New responsibilities given to Superintendent Glenn Curtis by the consolidation necessitated his moving to a new centralized office in the downtown district. Mr. Curtis prepares the school budget, employs new teachers, and acts as the general supervisor of the six schools in our district.

Last year, the control of our school unit was vested in a three-member board appointed by the city council. This year the board is composed of these men, Warren Schnaiter, Eugene Barnard, and Walter James, and the trustees of the four townships in our district, Roscoe Bothwell, Lewis Lind, Robert Fulford, and Floyd Neal. In the next primary election the citizens will elect a five-member board on a non-partisan ticket.

Busy Staff Serves MHS and School District

Chief assistants to the principal are the dean of boys and dean of girls. Both spend much time in counseling with pupils on educational and personal problems. Absentees must report to their offices to be readmitted to classes. Mr. Ward Brown is assistant principal as well as dean of boys. He directs the work of the Student Council and teaches one class of industrial arts. Mrs. Helen Davis is general club co-ordinator, a sponsor of the Sunshine Society, and instructor of two classes in home-making. The deans are located this year in the offices formerly occupied by the superintendent and his staff.

As secretary to the superintendent of a newly consolidated school district, Miss Mamie Messmer had to tackle many new problems. For assistance she had the services until Christmas of Mrs. Barbara Caress and then of Mrs. Louise Williams.

A new secretarial assistant in the high school offices this year was Mrs. Ernestine Carroll. Continuing her efficient services as secretary to the principal was Miss Maxine Cohen.

Student Health and Attendance Get Special Attention

Disease prevention is the aim of the school health service. School Nurse Jean Favour is particularly on the alert for defective vision and active tubercle bacillus. Mrs. Pat Wright, speech and hearing therapist, administers audiometer tests and gives special instruction to pupils with speech handicaps.

Besides supervising the MHS bookstore, Mrs. Helen Cogan purchases all books and supplies for the consolidated school district. She is also the auditor for all extra-curricular activities.

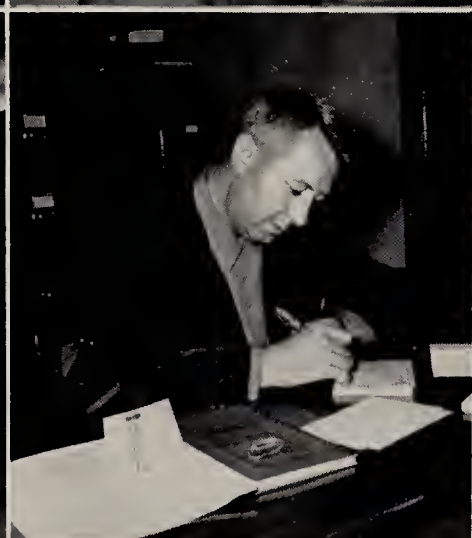

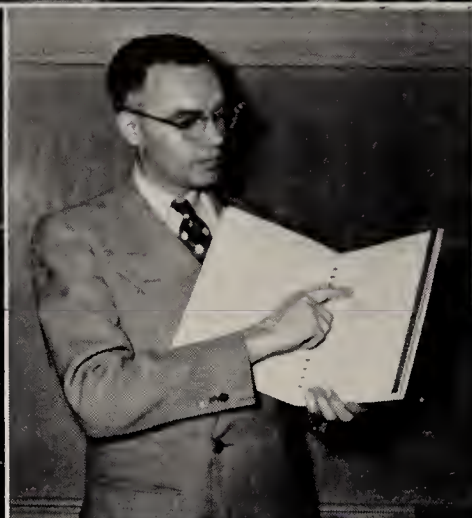

Consolidation brought a promotion to Mr. Herschel Baker to be director of maintenance and supply for the expanded school district. Mr. Baker studies materials, interviews salesmen, makes recommendations for improvements, purchases materials and supplies, supervises maintenance and custodial work.

As attendance officer for the entire school district, Mr. Kenneth Taylor tracks down truants and keeps official attendance reports. He has much to do with the enviable attendance record established by our schools.

ORGANIZATIONS

THE role of the school as a community center is well demonstrated in the activities of its extra-curricular organizations. The Sunshine Society brightened the lives of the county home residents. $1,150 was pledged by several clubs for the swimming pool fund. Nearly ninety dollars was raised for the Christmas seal drive by the Hi-Y and FFA basketball game. More mothers were able to vote on November 4 because the FHA girls served as baby-sitters. Pest eradication and farm safety campaigns were conducted by the FFA. And MHS musical groups presented several concerts and performed for a number of civic groups.

Christmas took on an extra special glow for the members of Sunshine who participated in the annual party for the residents of the County Home. A sense of peace and well-being filled the hearts of the girls as they left, knowing that they had helped fulfill the true meaning of Christmas by bringing a carload of gifts.

make school a community center

OUTSTANDING honors highlighted the year for some MHS organizations this year while others found satisfaction in the activities they carried out. The 1952 Artesian won top recognition from two high school press associations and the FFA was awarded the gold medal in the state chapter contest. Hi-Y Club sponsored a Clean Living Week and GAA a Clean Sports Week. Dramatics Club entertained with three one-act plays, and a number of organizations sponsored dances and parties.

Student Council Finances Improvements

The Student Council kept things hopping this year. The mixers after the basketball and football games were made more enjoyable when the council installed new lights and an amplifier in the girls' gym.

The cheer leaders seemed more peppy in their new uniforms, also financed by the council. Plenty of rollicking entertainment was provided at the annual amateur show and student-teacher basketball game.

Pres. J. K. Daily attended the national convention at Evanston, and the executive council went to the state convention at Terre Haute. Biggest thrill of the year for members was the trip to I. U. to attend the stage production, "South Pacific."

Chorus Presents "Belle of Bagdad"

A crowded oriental marketplace, exotic music, and foreign intrigue plus some very hilarious situations sum up appropriately the mixed chorus operetta, "Belle of Bagdad."

The operetta, an amusing story set in modern Persia involving American consuls, a caliph, his beautiful but lonely daughter and some stranded American pilots, promoted a flurry of activity in the music department. The mixed chorus members were kept busy painting sets, collecting props, planning costumes, and learning those all important lines and songs. The dramatic angle was under the supervision of Mrs. Betty Mann, while Mr. James Roderick directed the solo and chorus parts. Presented on March 27, the operetta was a tremendous success.

Besides presenting some outstanding convocations for senior high's entertainment the mixed chorus also gave some public performances. In keeping with the Christmas spirit, the mixed chorus, girls chorus, and the elementary choir combined to present an inspiring afternoon vesper service on Sunday, December 14.

During the fall, nine chorus members were selected to attend the State Choral Festival at Indianapolis, and later in the year at Bloomington the entire chorus participated in the District Choral Festival.

Vocalists Entertain Public

Madrigal is composed of eight outstanding chorus members. During Christmas season they sang for various clubs and organizations, besides taking part in the vesper services. As a group they placed first at district contest.

Girls Chorus, formed two years ago, is gaining recognition through its various performances. The chorus joined forces with the orchestra, mixed chorus, and elementary choir to present the annual Christmas vespers services for the public and the school. The trend in music this year has been towards popular songs, and the girls have enjoyed singing such favorites as "Dancing in the Dark," "Jealousy," and "I'll See You Again."

Band Catches Public's Ear and Eye

The high school band under the direction of Mr. Clyde W. Coburn fared well in the 1953 season. Public appearances of the band included solo-ensemble contest at Indiana University, May Festival, basketball and football games, state band contest, and public concerts.

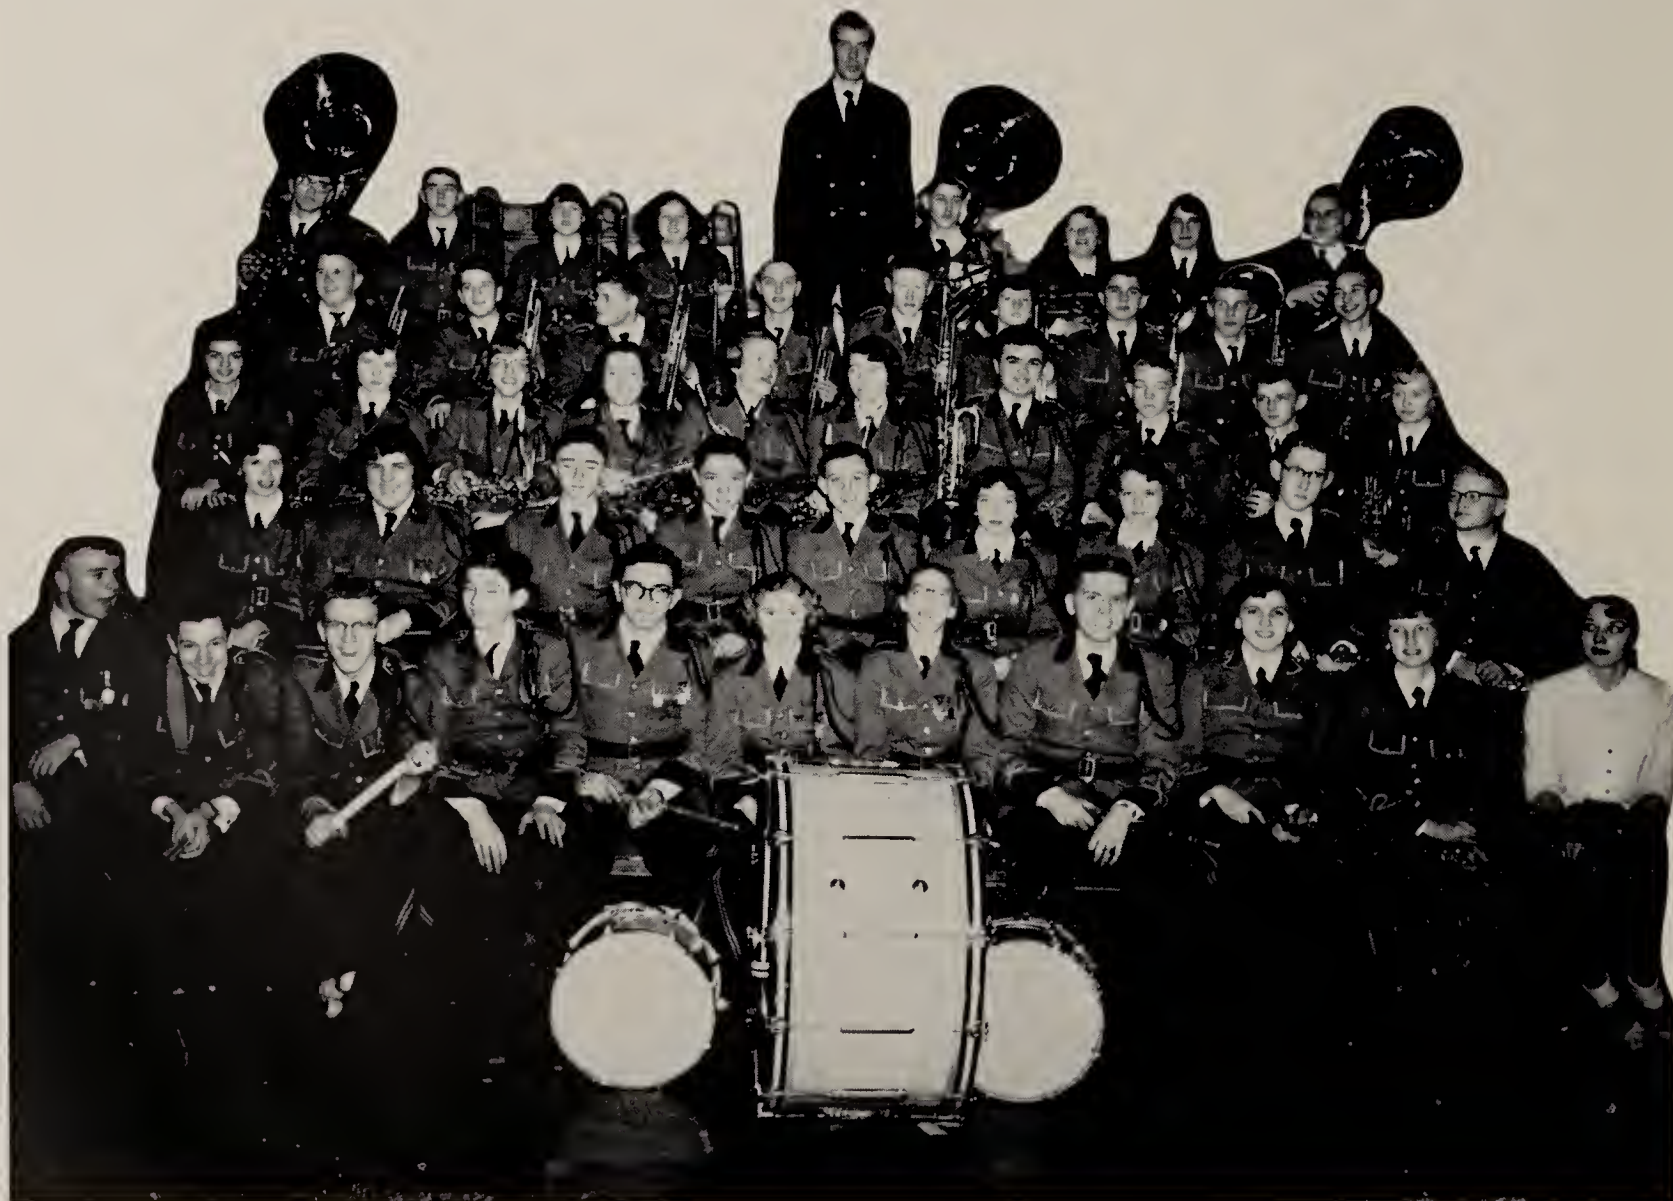

The band is to be complimented on their fine marching style which provided half-time entertainment at all the home football games.

This year the members of the band elected as co-captains, Dee Terrell and Donna Cramer; first lieutenant, William Elliott; second lieutenant, Ann Poulos; first sergeant, Bill Johnson; secretary, Jennifer Hamm; librarians, Frieda Myers, Robert Wade, Jr., and John Slaven.

The project of the band this year, along with the chorus and orchestra, was again the magazine subscription campaign. This money was used to buy new instruments for the music department.

Orchestra Follows Modern Trend

The MHS orchestra members were kept on their toes throughout the school year making public appearances which included junior and senior class plays, May Festival, commencement, and district and state contest.

Several members of the orchestra also participated in the Orchestra Festival with Martinsville students playing the role of host. The Orchestra Festival originated in MHS four years ago with musicians from six neighboring high schools working together to prepare a public concert, and now in 1953 returned to its place of origin.

Four solos and four ensembles received first division ratings in the All-State Solo and Ensemble Contest, held at Butler University this year.

The orchestra seemed to follow a more modern trend in music this year, playing such numbers as "Blue Tango" and the "Waltzing Cat." A little spice was added by numbers like "Mexican Overture" and "Cuban Holiday." Of course, at contest time and for concerts, strains from Bach's D Major Suite and Mozart's Symphony are often to be heard coming from the orchestra room.

Junior Scientists Hear Lectures

In their pursuit of scientific knowledge members of the Science Club heard talks this year by two guest speakers from Indiana University. G. K. Guennel, a paleobotanist (he studies plants), spoke on coal and how it is found. The other speaker, Dr L. N. Langer, a physicist who helped build the first A-bomb, told of the cyclotron at Indiana University which he and another man built.

James Goetcheus won local recognition this year when he entered the Westinghouse Science Talent Search. His project was "The Study of the Pituitary Gland and Its Hormonal Effects."

Last summer on June 5 and 6, five members and sponsor, Mr. John Carson, visited the scientific centers of Chicago: John G. Shedd Aquarium, Adler Planetarium, the Chicago Museum of Natural History, and the Museum of Science and Industry.

Inspecting a model eye are the Science Club officers: Sharon Hannum, vice-president; Donna Cramer, treasurer; Jim Bishop, reporter; Carol Adams, secretary; Max Smith, president, and Janet Cherry, librarian.

Senior high cheer leaders are Loren Freeman, Norma Mansfield, Betsy Schnaiter, Marilyn McDaniel, and Ronald Cordell. Junior high cheer leaders are Billy Hammons, Carol McFarland, Eleanor Bolin, and Paul Cordell.

Cheering Quintet

"Good game team, good game team. Team, we say, good game." With this yell, the cheering quintet closed a full year that began with the football season. For Ronnie Cordell and Marilyn McDaniel, it climaxed four years of service leading cheers. The others, Betsy Schnaiter, Norma Mansfield, and Loren Freeman, although mere infants in their first year on the squad, caught on quickly and performed like veterans.

But those unique yells, and that synchronized timing didn't "just happen," they took practice — at least one practice session each week as a squad plus what you could squeeze in on your own time. Also, they attended the Cheerleader Conference at Indiana University last fall, where they got ideas for those novel pep session skits and saw new yells being executed.

Movie Men

"Go see if they're ready to see this film on sound waves," says Jerry DaVee of the Projector Club to colleague Bill Paul. The thumping of feet on wooden stairs, however, is all the answer he needs. With the physics class finally seated, Jerry signals "lights out" and Bill pulls all lights except number six.

Now a woman's masculine voice tells Jerry that the sound track is not synchronized with the picture. An adjustment here and there, with Bill moving the speaker onto the stage, and everything runs smoothly. After the film is finally over, there is the rewinding, and packaging, and now the operators can return to study hall.

This is but a typical day for the twelve projector operators who devote any of their study periods to the service of the entire school.

John Percy, Kenneth Kitchen, Larry Scott, Jay Percy, and John Musgrave seem undecided about whether to go swimming or not at Dunes State Park. Last summer's annual FFA trip took the boys to Chicago and surrounding points of interest.

Mr. Ona Leonard and his son Wallace get advice from Mr. Telfer on improving the soybean crop, Wallace's project in F.F.A. Mr. Leonard is a member of the adult farming class which Mr. Telfer teaches.

Norman Voyles rests for awhile before going to the barn with his milking machine. Norman's project for this year was dairy improvement.

Several members of the chapter unload seed potatoes for their cooperative project of securing and distributing certified seed potatoes to members and farmers of the community.

The officers of FFA are John Percy, president; Kenneth Kitchen, vice-president; Junior Telfer, reporter; Don Berry, sentinel, and Bill Paul, secretary.

Community Services Bring Honors to FFA

Serving the community through club activities has brought state-wide recognition to the MHS chapter of Future Farmers of America. Last year the Martinsville and Plainfield chapters tied for top honors in the state contest, and again this year the local chapter was awarded the gold emblem for its well-balanced program of club activities. For the twelfth year the local club received first-place rating in District 8.

A farm safety campaign was staged this year to make farmers more aware of the dangers encountered on a farm. Films were shown and talks were made by the members. A second campaign was the eradication of farm pests. The chapter divided into teams, and each boy was given points when he destroyed a farm pest. At the end of the campaign, the losing team treated the winning team to lunch.

The club project this year was selling garden seeds and certified seed potatoes and seed corn. This was not only a money-making project, but also a community service. The boys sold these seeds to local farmers, and the farmers in turn were able to raise better crops.

The formal initiation of greenhands was held jointly with Plainfield. The local chapter also assisted in the initiation of the Monrovia and Mooresville greenhands. Last year's candidates for the highest degree given by the state, Hoosier Farmers, were all successful. They were John Thomas, John Percy, Jean Coleman, and Kenneth Kitchen. John Musgrave received the degree this year.

Twenty-six FFA members went to Chicago on the annual summer trip. Their annual summer meeting was spent touring the Ebner Ice Plant and Don Berry's farm.

This year's girl friend party was, as usual, lots of fun. The boys honored their mothers at a Mothers' Banquet, and the Future Homemakers were entertained in high style by their counterparts.

Drama Night Gives Budding Actors the Spotlight

"Quite successful" was Sponsor Mae McCoy's comment on Drama Night, February 19. Three one-act plays were presented: "Hurricane Hill," a serious play; "The Blue Teapot," a comedy, and "The Hardwick Mystery." The productions gave all members an opportunity in various activities — make-up, directing, acting or gathering props.

Twenty new members were initiated in both formal and informal ceremonies following a chili supper, October 27. Candidates for membership were sifted in try-outs on October 23. The new members were exposed to the traditional drinking of Caesar's blood, reciting lines from Shakespeare, and taking the "Actor's Pledge." Everyone went fishing in flour for a ring and was ducked in a tub of water. Another project of the club was a trip to Indiana University to see the "Jordan River Review."

Discussing plans for Drama Night, the high spot of the year for members of Dramatics Club, are the officers, Shirley Stump, secretary; Carol Fowler, president; Danny Myers, vice-president, and Linda Davis, treasurer.

"Now, Pa!" cries Erline Dunigan as Jerry Hine tries to interfere where he isn't wanted. Paul Townsend and Linda Davis seem oblivious of all the commotion going on in their play, "The Blue Teapot."

"O.K., who did it?" asks Inspector Donald Wise, as policeman Jon Japport stands by in case there's any trouble. Phil Goetcheus, Judy Hastings, Danny Myers, and Keith Sighting look as innocent as possible in this scene from "The Hardwick Mystery."

Max Smith, Keith Sichting, Donna Jo Cramer, Linda Davis, Dee Terrell, and Donna Jo Neal were elected in their junior year to membership in the National Honor Society. They presided this spring at the induction of the new members. Linda Davis served as president and Donna Neal, secretary.

Eighteen Seniors Win Coveted Honor

The National Honor Society is an organization in Martinsville High School with the purpose of creating an enthusiasm for scholarship, stimulating a desire to render service, promoting leadership, and developing character in our students. Not more than fifteen per cent of the senior class nor more than five per cent of the junior class can be elected into this chapter.

For a method of instilling the aims and ideals of the society into the new members and the school, the organization presents an impressive ceremony of induction. At this ceremony the president breaks the seal on the book which contains the names of the new members. The other members who were elected as juniors give solemn advice and honor to the initiates.

Seniors newly elected to the National Honor Society this spring were Carol Adams, Donna Daggy, Janet Sue Davis, John Hacker, Sharon Hannum, Jerry Hine, Joyce Hurt, Marilynn McDaniel, Danny Myers, Shirley Shields, Kay Smith, and Marilyn Telfer.

Junior members chosen this year were Martha Bastin, Jerry Davee, Betsy Grant, Lou Ann Hatter, Elmer Reynolds, and Bruce Throckmorton.

FHA Emphasizes Teamwork

"Spotlight your teamwork in family, home and America" was the 1952-53 theme of the Martinsville chapter of Future Homemakers of America. Their endeavors were to promote democracy in home and community by baby-sitting so that mothers could go to the polls and vote in the fall elections; to encourage teamwork in the club, home, and community by attending church together, and to overcome prejudices of foreign nations by each member sending a gift package to a German pen-pal.

The formal initiation was held January 29. After the candlelight service was conducted by the officers, punch and cookies were served. The informal initiation took place at the City Park with the customary tricks and pranks administered by the old members.

One of the highlights was the annual Christmas Tea. Members of the homemaking classes, faculty, and executive board members were invited. Two other annual events were the Mother-Daughter pitch-in supper and the FFA-FHA party. On April 14, the senior members were entertained by the stage presentation of "South Pacific" at Indiana University.

FHA Officers Install Mooresville Club

For the first time in the history of the chapter, the officers installed another group, the Mooresville FHA Chapter. Other activities of the club were selling home-made candy and basketball pennants as money-making projects and attending the district meetings at Jeffersonville in the fall and at Salem in the spring.

Joyce Hurt, Mrs. Ray Hurt, and Janice Franklin assisted at the FHA Christmas tea, given for the faculty and members of the homemaking department.

FHA initiation was fun, even though the girls had to carry dolls and wear diapers. They all agreed it was worth it, however, to become a member.

Artesian Again Wins National Honors

For the second successive year, The Artesian has been awarded the highest rating by the National Scholastic Press Association at the University of Minnesota. Besides this All-American rating, the 1952 Artesian also received the highest rating, Medalist, from the Columbia Scholastic Press Association.

The primary election in May 1952 provided the 1953 Artesian staff with an appropriate theme, for in a referendum the voters consolidated the separate school corporations maintained by Martinsville and four townships.

The book was printed by the Reporter Publishing Co. with the binding and covers furnished by the Heckman Bindery of North Manchester. Engravings were made by the Indianapolis Engraving Co. Senior photographs and most of the school groups were taken by the Campus Studio of Bloomington, and under-class pictures by Hewett Studios.

Herald Staff Scurries to Meet Deadlines

"Write another lead for that Easter copy," Jerry practically shouts to Kay as the biweekly deadline of the school paper draws near. "Johnnie, check to see if Imogene, Beverly, Agnes, or Richard have any more news to turn in. Jay, have you got page eight made up? Who swiped the galley proof for page six? Bill, what did you do with it? Janet, have you proofread Nancy's operetta copy? Hi-Y! Birch, I thought you said that you had checked that club news. Keith, where's that story on the Hoosier Relays? Has Connie found out the scores? Jean, finish that Spring fever editorial! Betty, help Anna Maye type that social column. Margaret, these jokes are corney."

Oh, the headaches of an editor-in-chief! Unbelievable as it may seem, however, the deadline is somehow met with only a few proddings from the supervisor, Mrs. Betty Mann, and everything is sent to Mr. Charles Hall, the printing adviser. But worries don't cease with the distribution of the Herald, for work already has begun on the next issue and the vicious cycle starts anew.

Sunshine Warms Hearts at County Home

For their good-will community project the Sunshine girls chose the County Home this year. For Thanksgiving the residents received a large basket of food, and at Christmas the club was divided into committees responsible for seeing that "their person" at the home had a Merry Christmas. Besides presenting them with a twenty-pound turkey and laying linoleum on their sitting room floor, several girls went out on Christmas Eve to help Santa distribute the packages.

The largest number of girls ever were admitted into the club. The traditional candlelight service was held in the sanctuary of the new Methodist Church. Following the initiation the girls entertained their mothers at the Mother-Daughter Tea in the church parlor.

In cooperation with the Hi-Y, the club gave a semi-formal Valentine's Day dance. Other activities included the sale of Christmas cards, contributing to the State Sunshine Project, Riley Hospital. Twenty-five seniors were entertained by the club at the Jordan River Review.

Never was the half of a football game dreaded so much as it was the night of informal initiation. In the end it was a lot of fun, though.

The Methodist Church was the scene of Sunshine formal initiation. Each girl carried a small lighted candle and seemed very solemn as she left the sanctuary after taking her vows.

This year formal initiation and the Mother-Daughter Tea were combined. Janice Cain doesn't seem to trust Sharon Hannum's ability as a "tea pourer." Others who assisted at the tea were Carol Adams, Mary Zarlington, and Linda Davis.

Chosen as Hi-Y officers for the year were, bottom row, George Bailey, sgt.-at-arms; Max Smith, secretary; Jerry Hine, treasurer; top row, Nick James, president; Keith Sichting, chaplain, and Bruce Throckmorton, vice-president.

Junior Telfer shoots a free throw while the other members of the Hi-Y and F.F.A. basketball teams watch anxiously. This year the Hi-Y won 13 to 11.

The Hi-Y Band performed adequately at the game, and the boys kept Hi-Y spirits high by yelling with gusto.

Hi-Y Host to District Conference

Putting emphasis this year on the fourth plank of their club platform, the Hi-Y sponsored a campaign on Clean Living. The club placed posters in the halls, and for a convocation the club presented Dr. Frank Liddle, secretary of Indiana YMCA, who urged students to put "God first, others second, and me third."

The Martinsville Hi-Y club was host to the district fall conference, made up of South Central Conference schools. J. Ben Duff, associate state secretary, spoke on "How to Improve Hi-Y Offices."

This year's program included attending church as a body four times and presenting the Hi-Y trophy to the boy who displayed outstanding sportsmanship on the basketball court.

Highlight of the year was the Hi-Y-FFA basketball game which the Hi-Y won for the first time in four years. Receipts from the game were donated to the T B. foundation. The Sunshine and Hi-Y co-sponsored a Valentine's Dance at which Sharon Hannum and Nick James were elected Queen and King. Other activities included the annual candy sales, two pitch-in suppers, and a spring picnic.

Reorganized Lettermen Score with Sweater Hop

The re-organization of the Lettermen's Club, under the direction of their new sponsor, Mr. Norman Coglan, got into full swing this year. A committee wrote a constitution.

The activities of the club this year included the annual project of giving food baskets to needy families at Christmas time. So that the teachers could become better acquainted with letter winners, the club entertained man faculty members at a supper. The club also sponsored a "Sweater Hop" with music by Jimmy Nash. To improve school spirit and to obtain more funds, the Lettermen this year sold "Artesian" booster buttons.

GAA officers are, sitting, Kathleen Maxwell, secretary; Janet Fisher, vice-president; standing, Carole Meredith, song leader; Mary Jane Bergman, treasurer; Mary Evelyn Kriner, reporter, and Francis Mulder, president.

GAA Entertains with Christmas Formal

Santa Claus and all the Christmas trimmings were ushered in this year by a formal dance sponsored by the GAA. Saint Nick, his reindeer, the traditional trees sparkling with blue lights, and a fireplace combined with the Highlighters' music to form a realistic background for all those in attendance.

"Oh, dear! I hope I never have to go through this again!" GAA members moaned on initiation night. Could it be that their feet got cold or was it shivers up their spines as they seemed to be walking on broken glass.

Carole Meredith and Ronnie Cordell, Laura Record and Billy Edwards, and Linda Davis and Phil Goetcheus were among the many couples who enjoyed the first formal dance of the year, given at Christmas time by GAA.

The second annual Sportsmanship Week with its red and blue ribbons again reminded us to improve our sportsmanship. A convocation with the Rev. Joseph MacDonald as speaker and the efforts of the club's girls through posters and talks, sparked the cooperation of the student body to make the week a great success.

Other activities of the club included their informal and formal initiations, the annual freshman-junior, sophomore-senior basketball game, and the State Wall Plaque Day at Indiana University on April 18.

During the school year there is a varied sports program in which the girls participate to earn their points for numerals, letters, plaques, and special awards. Volleyball, badminton, basketball, deck tennis, softball, and archery are the activities which divide the year into sports seasons. Besides these organized sports, there is extra credit given to those who take part in such unorganized activities as hiking and bicycling.

RHYTHM CLUB was formed last year for eighth graders and, although still in its infancy, is gaining popularity. The only requirement for becoming a member is that you be interested in learning to dance. The club meets every two weeks and is under the sponsorship of John Hazelett. Linda Harvey is president; Mike Wolff, vice-president, and Nyla Crone, secretary.

SCRIBE is the name of the Pen-Pals picked for their new seventh grade club this year. Hawaii, Sweden, Holland, France, England, Mexico, Cuba, Brazil, Canada, and Argentina are but a few of the many countries with which members correspond to become better acquainted with students of their own age from foreign countries. Mrs. Hazel Owens is sponsor.

Cafeteria Corps

These are the ladies who keep the students well-fed and healthy. They serve lunch in the cafeteria to about 250 students each day besides a similar number in the sandwich line. From left to right are Miss Opal Gray, Mrs. Evelyn Percy, Mrs. Myra Hochstetler, Mrs. Louise Skaggs, Mrs. Nora Murphy, and Mrs. Myrtle Bothwell.

Custodial Staff

The custodians who see that our school is spic and span are Thomas Tuttle, Robert Owens, Alfred Shumaker, Loy Bolin, Andy Moore, and Mrs. Harold Gregson.

Student Assistants

What would the school do without these student assistants, who work part of each day in the library, offices, or bookstore. They are, first row, P. Hamilton, P. Gould, C. Hacker, C. Adams, N. ATHLETICS

SCHOOL athletic events provide wholesome, exciting entertainment for residents of the Martinsville area, both young and old. The Artesian City has earned a reputation for being exceptionally interested in sports. Not only do these events provide entertainment, but they train students to become better citizens. As part of a team, a student learns to get along well with others. After graduation, these sports may be used as entertainment during leisure time and will afford many happy hours of pleasure.

Clubs and other student organizations supply concession workers at athletic events and share in the profits for the promotion of their activities. William Fisher and George Bowers are ready to serve the public.

contributes to community life

THE past year has brought many honors to MHS for its accomplishments in the sports world. Both the track and golf teams ended the season with perfect records of wins in regular competition, and both teams won South Central Conference titles. The football team is gaining more support each year. Basketball was, as usual, the major interest. Though faltering in the sectional tourney, the Artesians broke some school scoring records early in the season. The baseball team last year had the best record of any MHS team since baseball was reinstated in our school in 1946.

Gridders Break Losing Streak

Bad luck and injuries combined this year to give the MHS gridders only one win against seven losses. The brightest aspect of the 1953 team was the outstanding defensive work turned in by the entire team. Although the Artesians' offense was sadly deficient, several opposing players left the game due to the aggressive and hard-hitting MHS linemen.

For the first game Martinsville travelled to Greensburg where first-game jitters and a last-quarter fumble on the 6-yard line combined to hand the hosts a 6-0 victory. In the first home game the Artesians were host to a good Bedford team. The MHS offense couldn't get rolling and the Stonecutters walked off with a 14-0 victory.

The locals next returned to Mitchell, where the try for point after touchdown failed and gave the Yellow Jackets a 7-6 win. With the offense blossoming out in full glory and a shining defense holding fast, the Artesians snapped a 13-game losing streak by beating Greencastle 19-6 on the local gridiron.

For the next contest Martinsville travelled to Indianapolis to meet a very strong Sacred Heart eleven. The local squad turned in a great performance against the Spartan giants but lost by a 13-0 count. A first-minute touchdown against a strong University eleven aroused hopes for a second victory, but the Univees came back to win 19-6.

An exciting moment during the Martinsville-Greencastle game, which Martinsville won 19 to 6.

Artesian Netters Set New Scoring Records

Visions of an Artesian team battling for top honors in the Hoosier basketball world occupied many a fan's dreams early in December, when after three games the Red and Blue had pulverized Mooresville, Greencastle, and Rushville while building an 85-point-a-game average, tops in the state. The 93-point high against Rushville in the third game established a new school record, and Jim Bates set a new individual single-game high with 31 or 33 points, depending on how you scored a last-second tip-in.

The Artesians then went on to crush Batesville and Shortridge, but our opponents' stalling tactics held our scores down to more normal 62- and 61-point marks.

The sixth contest was a heartbreaking 49-48 defeat at Shelbyville. The Artesians got up off the floor from that one to turn sure defeat into victory over Seymour and 6-9 Harold Wilson. Then the tide turned against the Artesians. They dropped a 10-point decision to Greensburg, lost to Columbus, then in a holiday tourney fell to Columbus again and dropped University by only three points. They went on to a defeat by Broad Ripple and a hard-fought four-point loss to highly-ranked Jeffersonville.

Our Artesians showed flashes of former strength as they clobbered University by 18 points, but then they stumbled against the rival Bloomington Panthers, lightly-regarded Crawfordsville, and a strong Connorsville team. MHS came back with three in a row over Franklin, Southport and Bedford at season's end in what we hoped was a preparation for the sectionals.

The Artesians, however, while favored to go to a sectional final game with Bloomington, were upset in an overtime by a scrapping bunch of Morgantown Trojans, who played a near perfect stalling game.

Amel Porter was picked by SCC coaches for a guard position on the all-conference team.

Members of the 1952-53 varsity were, seated, Jim Major, Melvin Broadstreet, Amel Porter, Connie Warren, Billy Edwards; standing, Coach Vincent Bisesi, Ed Marshall, Jack Ennis, John Lowry, Bob Davis, Jim Bates, and Assistant Coach Clifford Hill. Tommy Russell served as student manager.

There was plenty of action in the Martinsville - Crawfordsville game, as these pictures plainly show.

Future Champs Gain Experience Early

The reserve basketball team ended the season with a 5-won, 14-lost record. The squad had an average winning margin of eight points in victories over Batesville, Shelbyville, Seymour, University, and Connersville.

The freshman team suffered its first defeat in two years to a tough Shortridge five. The team later lost to Franklin by two and to Bloomington by one for an 11-won, 3-lost record.

The junior high basketball team won nine games while losing one. The defeat, 40-38 in an overtime, came at the hands of the Marion County champs, Southport.

Coach John Mann

Baseball Team Has Three Wins

The baseball team of 1952 hung up the best record since the sport was reinstated in the spring of 1946. Although they won only one conference game, the Artesians, under the supervision of Coach John Mann and his assistant, Cliff Hill, won all three non-conference games for a four-won, five-lost season record.

Only three seniors, Don Bates, pitcher; Duanne O'Neal, shortstop, and Bill Thomas, third baseman, graduated from last year's team. With this light depletion, Coach Mann could field an all-veteran team, although it is likely that several new-comers may answer the umpire's call of "play ball."

The Artesians split the only two shut-outs of the 1952 season, winning from Monrovia in the season opener, 6-0, and falling to Franklin in a water-soaked 22-0 fiasco on a tiny Franklin diamond.

Cold weather forced a postponement of this year's opener with Monrovia scheduled for April 16, but with weather permitting the team expected to meet all conference opponents, with Rushville added to the 1953 card.

Track Team Wins Conference Title

The Artesian cindermen won several honors, besides going undefeated in dual and three-way meets. The MHS thinlies took the SCC crown by edging highly rated Columbus, but placed second to them in the sectional. They also placed second in the Linton Relays and won several honors in the celebrated Hoosier Relays. In regular competition they easily won dual meets from Plainfield and University, and took three-way meets from Danville and Lebanon, and from Ben Davis and Crispus Attucks.

Several boys won recognition for their accomplishments. Wayne Abbott, the team's star hurdler, won fifth in the Hoosier Relays, second in the Linton Relays, the conference meet, and the sectional. In the sectional, Ronald Cordell placed first in the pole vault and high jump and second in the broad jump, while Charles Inman took first in the 220 The mile relay, composed of George Bailey, Ed Marshall, David Ennis, and John Lowry, won first in several meets, and the shuttle hurdle team was undefeated.

Golfers Cop Conference Crown

The fulfillment of a pledge made over three years ago by four Artesian golfers was realized this year as the MHS golf team won the South Central Conference golf title by the largest margin in history.

In this meet Jim Goetcheus won low medalist honors with a 76 and teammate Ronnie Carmichael took second low medal with a 77. The Artesians had a team total of 327, only one stroke off the record team low of 326 made by Martinsville in 1936. Prior to the conference meet Martinsville was undefeated in six matches.

OUR CLASSMATES

THE Martinsville schools might be termed the "melting pot" of Morgan County. Boys and girls from all economic levels work and play together daily. Each morning the school grounds become alive with busses bringing students from Brooklyn, the surrounding hill areas, and the river bottoms. These students are as much a part of our schools as are the "city slickers." Some groups in the school enjoy good-natured rivalry with others, but when the honor and glory of MHS are at stake everyone pulls together.

Mrs. Floyd Neal seems fascinated by the things Mr. Carson tells her about the second annual freshman biology class open house. Kitsy and Donna Jo Cramer are as interested as their mother, Mrs. Dan Cramer, in the projects on display.

live throughout new district

MHS buzzed with class activities during the school year. The seniors kept especially busy, for they wanted to make good use of every minute of their last year of high school. They displayed their dramatic talents in "Girl-Shy" and in general took over leadership in student activities. The juniors lampooned high school life with "Our Miss Brooks," and their "Heaven-on-Earth" Prom was just out of this world. During Thanksgiving season the sophomores came into the limelight when their English classes presented a Thanksgiving play for the school. For the freshmen there was the Biology Open House, where the results of many hours of hard work were put on display.

Class Officers Keep Busy

The senior class officers seem to be enjoying the task of choosing commencement announcements. They are Johnnie Hacker, vice-president; Mary Jo Stout, secretary; Marilyn McDaniel, treasurer, and Dee Terrell, president. Their other jobs include performing in class-day exercises, typing cap-and-gown order cards, collecting fees, and being outstanding examples, occasionally, of conduct becoming to seniors. Mary Jo cut her ties with the class in mid-year to tie on the bonds of matrimony.

Seniors in Step as Time Marches On September 1949 Remember? We were freshmen, the largest class ever to enroll in MHS. Right away we plunged into as many clubs as would have us, and the boys took to sports in a big way. Ronnie Cordell and Marilyn McDaniel were elected cheer leaders.

September 1950 As sophomores we returned to our classes a little more poised than a year ago. On we plugged, applying any left-over energy to more club activities, dances, athletics, and parties.

September 1951 Here we were — juniors already. The class play, "The Girl Friend," was a big hit. And the Prom, presented as a Mardi Gras, took a place of honor in our memories. On Senior Day no one was able to deny that we deserved the privilege of taking our places in the senior section.

May 1953 Now, as seniors, we are faced with the difficulty of saying "Good-bye" and the problem of how to say "Thanks" to every one who has given us a lift along the way. It has been quite a year: Assuming leadership of most club activities, compiling a yearbook, measuring for caps and gowns, ordering pictures and announcements, presenting a class play, and now finally Honor Day, Baccalaureate, and Commencement.

Juniors Work Way Up

By handling their responsibilities with efficiency and good judgment the juniors have earned the right to step into positions of leadership next fall

After the pleasant task of selecting and then exchanging class rings came the not so pleasant ordeal of refresher math tests. For those who failed there was the consolation that they were far from being alone.

"Our Miss Brooks," a comedy concerning the problems of a high school teacher, was the title of the junior class play. Then everyone's attention turned towards the Junior Prom, when the juniors treated their guests like angels, for the theme this year was "Heaven on Earth."

Sophomores Show Promise

Sophomores, still in the stage where studies take more time than other school activities, were far from being a "forgotten class." Everyone was surprised at their acting abilities when they presented a play for the Thanksgiving auditorium program. Many of them also took part in the Biology Open House. The sophomore sponsor is Mr. Henry Percy.

Frosh Again Display Projects

Entering their first year of high school was as big a thrill for the freshmen as entering their last year was for the seniors. For the first time they were allowed to choose their own subjects, with some assistance, of course. For several weeks the biology students worked industriously on projects to be put on display at the second annual Biology Open House. On that night their parents and friends were invited to come and inspect these projects, and there were many proud freshmen and many more proud parents. To top off an enjoyable evening, there was a freshmen mixer afterwards. All these activities were directed by the freshman sponsor, Mr John Carson.
